The game was well played, Roanoke showing up in much better form than yesterday. Pittmorris was in the box for the home team, and held Norfolk's hard hitters down, wille his support was almost perfect. Fry started in to pitch for Norfolk, but was very wild, forcing a man in on balls in the fourth. He was then taken out and Kissenger substituted, who did better. In the sixth Hodge objected to one of McLaughlin's decisions, and was fined 35. He persisted in talking, and was finally ordered out of the game, Land talking his place. Score:

He said he had just had a long interview with Colonel Ellett, and that while the candidate was still a sick man, he expected that after a short rest he would be ready to start in on the canvass. To-day Colonel Ellett goes to Warrenton, where he will spend at least a week or ten days. He will then return to Richmond, where a conference of the Democratic leaders will be held and plans mapped out. Mr. Scott spoke very conflicintly of the prospects for success, and said that he never again expected to see the day when a Republican would represent this district in Congress. He said he thought the battle would begin about September 1st and continue until victory was secured.

DUEL IN MEXICO.

Government Official Killed by a Congressman—More Combats Imminent.

ST. The seconds of Verastegui were Apollinario Costillo, president of the Mexican Senate and editor of El Partido Liberal, and Ramon Prida, a congressman and editor of El Universal. The seconds of Romero were Senor Borrello, a Spanlard, and General Lanro Ca-rillo, ex-Governor of Chihuahua and a member of the Senate.

The duel was the result of a quarrel about a woman, and occurred shortly after t o'clock, near the American Cemetery, on the outskirts of the city. At the first fire Verastegui fell with a bail through his heart, and the body was taken to the police station. The affair has created a huge sensation in government and social circles, and is the most notable duel which has occurred in the republic for a dozen years.
